With origins going back to 1870s Wales, this Old Man is a pretty established nursery rhyme. What is considered the original version was not published until 1937, though, and a version that is familiar to most of us was published in 1906. The most common version works: This old man, he played one, he played a knick-knack on my thumb; With a knick-knack paddywhack, this old man came rolling home. This old man, he played two, He played a knick-knack on my shoes; With a knick-knack paddywhack, this old man came rolling home. This old man, he played three, he played a knick-knack on my knee... Etc. This old man, he played four, He played a knick-knack on my door... Etc. This old man, he played five, He played a knick-hug on my hive... Etc. This old man, he played six, He played a knick-knack on my sticks... Etc. This old man, he played seven, He played a knick-hug in heaven... Etc. This old man, he played eight, He played a knick-knack for my gate... Etc. This old man, he played nine, he played a knick-knack on my spine... Etc. This old man, he played ten, He played a knick-hug again... Etc. Most modern versions replace the pie whack on Paddywhack, a more politically correct term, given that Paddy can be interpreted as a derogatory term often translated as a brawny Irishman. Some historians have also suggested that a more modern version was proposed by a known pervert that offers to play paddywhack with young passers-by in a particular colonial city. The song was distributed as a way for the townspeople to let the old man know that they were on him and warn the children away from him. An even earlier version was recounted and published by Anne Gilchrist, who said she learned it from her Welsh nanny. With its strange language, the lyrics are clearly before the old man's version, and are fittingly innocent as a children's song. My name is Jack Jintle, the oldest, but one, and I can play nick-nack on my thumb. With my nick-nack and pad-lock and singing money song, and all the fine ladies come dancing along. My name is Jack Jintle, senior, but two, and I can play nick-nack on his own shoes. With my nick-nack.... Etc. Copyright © 2011 Meredith Corporation. More about children's musical family activities to entertain everyone and on this farm he was a cow and on this farm he was a pig everywhere oink-oink And on this farm he was a horse with neigh-neigh here and neigh-neigh there everywhere neigh-neigh Old MacDonald has been singing millions of children every year. But how far back does this song go? Some historians point to a 1719 opera called Kingdom of birds, in which one character sings: In the Countryside Frost and Snows, There I keep my Father's cows, booin here, booin there, each where Boo, We defy all the care and strife, In Charming Country-Life. In 1908, a 74 year old woman the workhouse was recorded singing a song called Farmacyard: Up had me on my fa-ther farm on a May day morn-ing ear-ly, Nourishing My Fa-ther Cows On To May day morn-ing ear-ly, With moo moo here and moo moo there, here moo, there moo, there moo, here pret-ty moo. Six pret-ty maids are coming and gang-long o me in the mer-ry green fields farm yard. By 1917, a more recognizable version was posted in a collection of World War I-era songs: Old Macdougall was holding Ohio-i-o, and on this farm he had some dogs ohio-i-o, with a bow-wow here, and bow-wow there, here's a bow, there's wow, everywhere bow-wow. The mostmoderate version simply reels off various barnyard animals with extra sounds, each poem adding a previous sound to a long string, until the end of the song, children are mooin, neighing, barking, meowing, quacking, and clucking. The song can continue as long as the singers have patience and can think of new animals to add to the repertoire. The tune is attributed to the Sam Patterson Trio, who released the song with the Edison label in 1925. Copyright © 2011 Meredith Corporation. Even without the gut-busting soul-stomping vocalization of us Queen Beyoncé, the first trailer for Everything, Everything would feel like an emotional roller coaster ride. The film (and corresponding trailer) adapted from Nicola Yoon's young adult novel about an 18-year-old quarantined in her home is bound to cause some tears. Meanwhile, with a trailer for a song titled Runnin (Lose It All) – which is a collaboration from English producer Naughty Boy with Mother's Goddess (Bey) and Arrow Benjamin – it's darndest to add emotional value. Song everything, The whole trailer will send you to feel like you need to leave your office job right now and go to the beach because life is so short. Honestly this trailer can be considered NSFW for this reason because that vibe definitely helps the fast-paced background track. The film follows Maddy (The Hunger Games Amandla Stenberg), a teen who spent her entire childhood inside her home because of mysterious immunodeficiency. Her only companions for her childhood include her mother, an over-protective doctor, and her nurse. Then the young boy-next-door comes knocking on the door, the bundt cake in hand, and it's love at first sight. In a Romeo and Juliet-esque twist, Maddy's mother is not a fan of her daughter's neighboring boyf, Ollly. But despite mama's reservations, love-soaked teens get to runnin, runnin', runnin', runnin' so Maddy can experience how she puts it, everything, everything, or at least one perfect day before she (probably) dies. The power ballad from Naughty Boy describes the subjects without taking into account their personal hangups and performing each other in spite of it all. Lyrics These four lonely walls have changed the way I feel and no runnin of myself no more, almost it seems like they were made specifically for this movie. But, in fact, they didn't, the song actually came out in September 2015. Even a music video that offers a couple of runs after each while the underwater feels like the ocean-heavy vibe of Everything, the whole trailer. It's like this song didn't reach its full potential until now. The combo of the songs and trailers do a great job of reminding us how short life can be, and yet how long it feels without adventure, or love. They also both serve as a reminder that being true to themselves is the only way to be in love. There are many feelings in one two minutes that we all have with this trailer/trailer song combo. Get ready for all your feelings to reach the last resting place when everything, Everything premieres May 19! If this trailer brought a tear to your eyes, perhaps you would cry in buckets of salty tears during the movie. Almost like... Ocean? It's fitting, right?
